Humbly in Politics.
There are many things urged by the partisan press as arguments for or against opposing parties that imply the secret contempt of political leaders for the popular understanding. In some cases this is so evident, that writers and speakers as good as say to the people, "We believe you are fools in general, and we will influence you by arguments only calculated for fools, and such as every sensible man would laugh at." Of this character, it seems to us, is the argument of some of the Radical journals which boast of the larger revenue and smaller expenses of Grant's administration, compared with Andrew Johnson's. The latter they style Democrat, and therefore charge the difference to the Democratic party; the former being a Republican party—whereas they know that the whole responsibility of the revenue system, and the entire appropriations during Johnson's time were created by their own Republican party—whereas they know that the whole responsibility of the revenue system, and the entire appropriations during Johnson's time were created by their own Republican party—whereas they know that the whole responsibility of the revenue system, and the entire appropriations during Johnson's time were created by their own Republican party—

...and all that for mere party purposes. Now they talk about the difference between Johnson, Democrat, and Grant, Republican; when in fact there is no difference in the two.—Both were Democrats before they were elected President—both placed in power by themselves. The Democratic party, whatever else may be said of it, is not responsible for either of their presidential positions, not at all. They both were radically elected and democratically opposed—men of their own choosing.

No allowance is made either in these boasts of Johnson, for the changes of circumstances, Johnson was in office at the close of the war. The country was merely starting to recover its business prosperity. The Southern States were exhausted, and could add little to the revenue; and the remains of war expenses, larger military force and all that, were encumbering the treasury. Now the South has again become a producing section, internal trade revived, etc., and the Radicals say, "See what a difference between Grant and Johnson!" Even the New York Tribune is guilty of such logic. But surely that editorial could not have been written by HORACE GREELLY.

Harper's Weekly on Ex-Governors.

At the request of a friend, we give place to the annexed article concerning the political course of Judge James L. Orr. As we have expressed our views thereon, we do not hesitate to give it a place in our columns:
Ex-Governor Orr's Letter.—The letter of ex-Governor Orr, of South Carolina, giving his reasons for acting with the Republican party in that State, is one of the most interesting political papers that we have recently seen. Mr. Orr is an old and experienced politician, and a man of sagacity, whose views are therefore worthy of attention. He reviews the situation in South Carolina, where at this time there are two parties, the Reform and the Republican, and he states the reasons why reform is more practicable under the latter than the former, inasmuch as there is no substantial difference in principle. Mr. Orr does not deny the necessity of reform in many details; but sees no hope for it out of the party which must for many years be dominant. The reason of this dominance is the indecisive attachment of the colored citizens to the Republican party, an attachment which he considers inevitable, and of which he speaks with singular good sense. The Democrats who count upon the colored vote in the Southern States may read with great profit what their former chief says upon this point.

Suppose, says Mr. Orr, that we whites had been enslaved; that a party had made to give us freedom; that it had succeeded; that it had freed its own supremacy by giving us civil and political rights; and that then those who had opposed granting us all these boons should appeal to us to join with them and overthrow the party of our deliverance and redemption—would any white man tolerate with patience such a proposition? Some of our party leaders might be corrupt and teacherous, but we certainly should not join our enemy to destroy our party until we had tried to reform it.

Mr. Orr therefore concludes that, as the colored citizens will long hold the balance of power, and cling unalterably to the Republican party, and as all old party issues, banks, internal improvements, etc., are settled, the duty of all good citizens is to see that the intelligence of the white race can never be made available in the conduct of affairs until it secures the political confidence of the colored voters. With great good sense Mr. Orr says, in conclusion, that if good and true men in the Southern States will consent to accept the reconstruction acts of Congress, and accept the new conditions of affairs they could do something to correct abuses and restore a real property.

Arrives Here.
The Aurora Herald, on last Saturday night, shows very brilliant to the people of Greenville, and we suppose the whole country. It was noticed in Columbia, and was so bright, that the Guardian says some green ones cried fire. In Charleston the illusion was so complete, that some of the fire companies turned out.

A New Work.
A Treatise on the Preparation and Delivery of Sermons, by D. L. D., Professor in the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary, Greenville, S. C.

We have been favored with a copy of this admirable work, and from the brief time we have devoted to looking over its pages, we are convinced that the high expectations of its merits, founded upon the well-known genius and ripe scholarship of the author, have been fully met—rather exceeded by the book itself. It ought to find a place in every gentleman's library, for although by its title it might seem only to concern preachers, every cultivated reader will find in its pages most instructive and entertaining reading. In this opinion we are confirmed by a writer in the Phoenix, over the signature of "B.," who evidently has thoroughly examined the work, and we happen to know is a gentleman highly competent to give a learned and able criticism on its character.

The following is the article referred to: "Let no one refrain from purchasing this book under the idea that it is a mere text book, or is useful only to students of sacred rhetoric. It is one of the most readable and interesting treatises on the art of oratory ever written. The whole literature of the subject, in the best writers, ancient and modern, is reviewed. Every one who has to speak to others, or desires information on this subject, or who would so cultivate his taste as to hear, with appreciation, a preaching or any other public speaking, will find this book eminently useful. It is so charmingly written as to force a continued perusal when once taken up, and so full of valuable suggestions that one will feel inclined to recur to it again and again.—This will be especially true of public speakers for whom—as contra distinguished from writers—it is especially written. In this it differs from other books of rhetoric, which fall to distinguish between the art of writing and that of speaking, except so far as mere utterances or oratory is involved. He who studies this book will see in how many other respects differences may be traced, and such, too, as it is well for every speaker to know and appreciate. The author is well known to have combined several qualifications for his work. Not only is his reputation well established as one of the best scholars and most successful preachers of the day, but from his lecture rooms in the Seminary has come the report that his greatest excellence is as an instructor. Upon the subject on which he has written he has taught for ten years large classes of pupils. The announcement a year ago, therefore, that this work was in preparation, excited no little expectation. We feel warranted in saying that this expectation has been fully met. We cordially commend the book to all public speakers, but especially to ministers, and more especially to all those who are at the beginning of their ministry. Surely all such should be anxious to know how to speak effectively.—And here is an able treatise, by one well qualified to treat the subject, and by one who evidently believes that much more is gained in this direction by work and study than is generally supposed."

Georgia State Agricultural Fair.

The State Agricultural Society will hold their sixteenth annual fair in the city of Atlanta, Georgia, commencing October 19th next, and will probably continue ten or fifteen days. We have been requested to publish the annexed statements in reference thereto, which we do very cheerfully, for the benefit of any who may wish to attend, and we hope there are a great many, as much will be on exhibition that to see and witness will well repay for the time and money spent. There is no doubt but that this Fair will be grand in proportions:
The grounds are elegantly fitted for the purpose, well watered and otherwise adapted. The completion of the H. I. Kimball House, having 317 rooms, exclusive of offices, with the National, St. James, United States, American, and Tremont Hotels, besides numerous private boarding houses and five hundred tents to be erected in the Park, warrant the citizens in offering accommodation for 100,000 guests. For the convenience of persons who do not desire to remain in the city at night, special trains will be run on four different lines of railroad, starting in the evening and returning at a convenient hour in the morning; thus enabling persons to lodge in the adjoining towns. $25,000 in premiums are to be offered. The citizens of Atlanta offer a specimen of $3,000 for the fastest trotting horse; $500 for the next best, open to the world.
Trains will leave Atlanta for the Fair-ground every thirty minutes in the day during the Fair.

The fare to go and return over the railroad, will be greatly reduced.
The following resolution passed the Georgia State Agricultural Society unanimously, having a representation from over 100 counties:
Whereas, the Fair to be held in Atlanta during the month of October, 1870, is intended to be a grand exhibition of American industry; and
Whereas, said exhibition will be held under the immediate control and supervision of the Georgia State Agricultural Society; therefore be it
Resolved, That we, the delegates and representatives to the Georgia State Agricultural Society assembled, do hereby extend to our fellow citizens of the North, East and West a cordial invitation to meet their brethren of the South at said Fair, to exchange friendly greetings, to exhibit stock, agricultural implements and other articles of home industry, and thus promote the material interest of all sections.

Large Land Sale.
We are informed by Capt. J. W. Westfield, our esteemed citizen, that he has completed the sale of his McBees Place, (which was the homestead of the late VANDY McBEES), containing 1060 acres, Mr. THOMAS M. COX, for fifty thousand dollars, a part of which was cash and the balance on time. Much of this land lies within and contiguous to the city.
Two years ago, Capt. Westfield purchased this property, for which he gave $30,000, and in the sale has a good margin for profit. Our people will see by this transaction how rapidly property of this character is enhancing. This is the largest land sale that has occurred for many years in this part of the country.

Rev. James E. H. D.
This worthy colored man made his appearance in Greenville the other day, and a meeting was gotten up on Monday evening for the purpose of listening to an opportunity of addressing the people, especially those of his own race. We regret that the rudeness of some of that class prevented him from making a speech, by constant interruption and noise. The meeting was broken up in confusion.
This is the first occurrence of such a mob spirit in Greenville for years. Those colored men who interrupted Bryan ought to be ashamed of themselves for any opportunity of addressing the people, especially those of his own race. We regret that the rudeness of some of that class prevented him from making a speech, by constant interruption and noise. The meeting was broken up in confusion.

Death of Mrs. Carson.
We regret to announce the death of Mrs. CARSON, wife of TENCH C. CARSON, Esq., deceased, late of this County, which occurred at her plantation on Monday night last, 12 miles above the town. She was a daughter of VANDY McBEES, Esq., deceased, and leaves many relatives and friends to mourn her loss. She was buried on Tuesday, in the Episcopal graveyard of this place.

Premium Lists.
We are under obligation to Col. D. WYATT Aiken Secretary of the South Carolina Agricultural and Mechanical Society, for a package of the Premium Lists of that Association.
The Fair will be held in Columbia, beginning on the 9th November.

New Goods at Mr. H. C. Mark's.
This gentleman requests us to state that he is now opening a large and full stock of Goods, at his store, and will advertise next week.

Returned.
Mr. S. SWANALE, who has been spending the summer at the North with his family, returned on Monday last, much improved and invigorated in health. Our citizens greet them.

H. Beattie & Co.
Are receiving their usual stock of Fall and Winter Goods, which they are now opening and marking. They will advertise in full next week.

The Store Full.
SULLIVAN & SON are very busy opening box after box of Fall Goods. We have seen some of them, and they please us.—Particulars will be furnished soon.

Does it Pay Producers to Ship their Cotton?

Messrs. Editors—Allow me to say a few words to the cotton producers in relation to shipping their cotton. Last year, it became quite common among the farmers to have their cotton shipped. Yesterday I had occasion to investigate the general result of cotton shipping, and found that, in ten, or more, lost money by shipping, and some few lost by holding cotton over. However, not more than thirty dollars per bale. Again, the farmer might reason in this way: If cotton buyers can afford to ship, why not the producer? The producer can ship to as much advantage as the buyer; but the general result of cotton speculation breaks four-fifths or more.—Yet if you desire your cotton shipped, you can have it done free of charge. You can always find regular cotton shippers who are ready and willing to wait upon you in that line—men who are posted in the business. You can also find men outside of the cotton business equally as anxious to wait upon you in that line. Now I would suggest to the farmer, for him to ship his own cotton upon his wagon to the nearest market—then and there sell to the man who pays most for it; it is then under his control, without any further loss, gain or contention. As I have not seen an estimate of the present crop under four million bales, I would advise the farmer to sell as soon as the cotton can be prepared for market. November deliveries are being made in New York at 16 1/2 cents, which would bring the price to 13 1/2 in this market.

Horrible Murder.—Milly Jackson, a negro girl in the employ of a colored man, as a nurse, on the plantation of Mr. John Cameron, about eight miles North of this place, having committed some misdemeanor, was chastised by the said colored man, her employer. Shortly after the employer left the house, the negro girl, through revenge, built a fire in the cradle containing a colored child and burnt it to death, after which she set fire to the house, consuming it and the child. The child was only seven months old. The negro girl is now in jail in this place.—Windsor News.

Theory is worth but little, unless it can explain its own phenomena; and it must effect this without contradicting itself; therefore, the facts are sometimes assimilated to the theory, rather than the theory to the facts. Such has been fully demonstrated in the past history of the great evils effected by the use of the "OLD CAROLINA BITTERS," which has become the only reliable remedy for misanthropic complaints, fevers, agues, etc., in the South.
Safe! sure! reliable! in Wineman's Worm Candy!

Dr. TUTT'S EXPECTORANT.—All who have used this invaluable medicine for Coughs, Colds, Asthma, Spitting of Blood, Hoarseness, Difficulty of Breathing, Bronchitis, and all diseases of the Lungs attest its usefulness. For Lung affections it has no equal. 19-2

South Carolina Presbytery.

Messrs. Editors—This venerable body will meet to-morrow evening, 29th instant, in the Presbyterian Church in this place, at half-past 7 o'clock, and be opened with a sermon by the Rev. A. A. MORRIS, its last Moderator.
This Presbytery is the oldest of the four Presbyteries in the State, and the mother of Haverly, Bethel and Charleston. It has always been distinguished for a conservative Orthodoxy, and yet tolerant to all Christian churches, and fraternizing with all who share the name of Christ in sincerity and truth. She has steadily increased, and now has on her roll 27 ministers, 54 churches, 31 churches and 6 candidates for the ministry. It includes the Counties of Spartanburg, Greenville, Pickens, Oconee, Anderson, Laurens, Newberry, Abbeville and Edgefield. This is a large territory, and comprises the upper, and now most important and flourishing part of the State.—Many distinguished names add to its roll.
Dr. MOSES WADDELL, the celebrated teacher of Calhoun, McDuffie, Pottery, Legare, Longstreet, and many others of great distinction, was for many years one of its members. Dr. BARR was an orator of the first-class; powerful in logic; perspicacious in style; always fresh and original; blinding with thought, he furnished, melted all his material in hot emotion, and poured out a stream of eloquence which carried his audience whither he would. The most cultivated audience sat at his feet spell bound, equally with the illiterate. He was the orator of men—of humanity itself, not of any particular place. When Dickson, Gilliland, Alexander, the two Cates, Lewis, and last, but not least, the steadfast, laborious and useful Humphreys; and now on its roll, it has many worthy successors, of whom, as they live, it is not meet to speak.

In the Presbyterian Church, this body is a Hebrew of the Hebrews—a long line of ancestry in the Christian ministry. Greenville welcomes them in her midst. May she rejoice in them, in entertaining them, they entertain angels; and may the fruits of their labors in conference, in the pulpit, and in families, be a hundred fold to the praise and glory of God. A CARD.

To the Editors of the Greenville Enterprise: As one of the Candidates for the Legislature of the State, it becomes me to announce the platform on which I ask the suffrage of my fellow-citizens. It may be comprehended in a sentence: Recognition of and obedience to existing laws of the State and nation; the peace and progress of our own people without regard to race, color, or previous condition; popular education; the rectification of past wrongs, and an honest administration of public duties in the future.

The national interest being concerned in the present election, it is necessary to advert to them here. The interests of South Carolina are alone involved, and to promote them will be my aim. My age, experience, and personal character, will sufficiently attest the sincerity of my motives, and because of these motives, personally and politically, I invoke the confidence and support of my fellow-citizens.

What Does Reason Say?

The little mosquito when bitten by a deadly serpent resorts to a certain plant, eats of it, and escapes the effects of the poison. That is nature's remedy. Has man any other? Does it not tell us that to invigorate and purify the system is the best way to protect it against the invisible poison which generates disease? Surely it does. The next question is, what guide shall we follow in choosing a medicinal safeguard? Reason replies let your monitor be experience. Well, the experience of eighteen years comprised in one unbroken series of satisfactory testimonials assures us that HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS possess strengthening, regulating and antiseptic properties which are not combined in the same happy proportions in any other preparation extant. This, therefore, is the antidote to which reason bids us resort when our health is imperiled either by the malaria which produces epidemic disorders, or by any other cause, whether inherent and constitutional, or connected with our habits, occupation and pursuits.
The venom of a noxious reptile is scarcely more subtle and dangerous than that which lurks in foul air and impure water. To escape the fever, bilious disorders, disturbances of the bowels, and other serious maladies produced by these insidious elements, it is absolutely necessary that the stomach and all the secretory organs should be, so to speak, in a robust condition. Upon the amount of residue which the system can eliminate depends the deleterious influences that assail it, the safety of the health depends; and it is because the GREAT VEGETABLE PURGATIVE imparts energy and regularity to the most important functions of the body, that it can be recommended and guaranteed as an invaluable preventive medicine. 16-1m

Nothing transpired during the night to disturb the quiet, and in the morning no sign of the disturbance could be seen. It may be supposed that the mob would attempt to march towards town, moved in the direction of Edgefield, as it was reported that a large force of negroes were on the Edgefield road, and about to cross to join issue with the Belmonters, but the result of this we have not ascertained.—Mercury Herald.

OUR MANUFACTURING INTERESTS.—The manufacturers of the North have asked for and obtained the assistance of the National Government and they have become a burden to the people at large, and the tax paid by the United States for the support of these manufacturers is equal to all the other taxes put together. Let our manufacturers make goods of better quality, and at lower prices, than other manufacturers, and they can defy competition without Government help. This, at least, is the plan of Mr. P. F. Toak, of Charleston, S. C., the largest and most successful manufacturer of domestic blades and mouldings in the Southern States. 12-5

"CLEANING THE BLOOD."—Upon which charlatans have harped so much, is not a mere catch word and delusion. The microscope shows that many diseases exist like parasitic growths upon the globules of the blood, and it is further known that some subtle substances destroy or expel them. These substances have been combined to make AYER'S SERRAVALLO, which does effectively expel the disorders that breed and rankle in the blood to rot out as it were the machinery of life.—[Mercury] (Pa) White. 15-5
